

STRATEGIC ALLIANCES AND TEAMING

As one of its missions, Indeck Energy forms strategic partnerships with individuals or companies that possess certain technologies, skill sets, local knowledge or business development experience to join with Indeck Energy in developing energy projects in North America. While North America is our main focus, we are willing to consider opportunities internationally as well.

As you can see from our website, we have been a highly successful, privately owned, independent energy producer for over 20 years. We have developed, owned and operated energy facilities in the U.S., Canada, the U.K., and Guatemala. Our developments have included both renewable and conventional power and fuels projects. Our sister companies form a vertically integrated leader in the industrial boiler industry.

We are common sense individuals that work as a team and are looking for others that we can team with for one project or through a broader strategic alliance to develop, own and operate energy facilities. Given our wide range of experience, new or re-powering projects can span the energy industry from wood, gas, and solar electric generating plants to wood pellet production facilities.
